Health and Safety Month 2022

October is national Health and Safety month, a nationwide effort to raise awareness about work health and safety and to reduce work-related injury, illness and death. In Tasmania, WorkSafe Month has been a long running initiative funded by the WorkCover Tasmania Board and delivered by WorkSafe Tasmania.

WorkSafe Month helps employers, managers and workers by raising awareness and sharing knowledge on how to better manage workplace hazards, understand rights and responsibilities, manage positive return to work and injury management outcomes, improve mental health in workplaces and better work life balance. Participants who attend a WorkSafe Month event will receive a certificate of attendance.

This year the theme explores 'Safe Bodies, Safe Minds', and offers a varied program which includes free webinar presentations, facilitated in-person seminar and workshop discussions, and the annual Health and Safety Representatives Conference in Launceston and Hobart.

To register for an event please visit the WorkSafe website.

Members seeking further advice or assistance in managing health and safety in their workplace are encouraged to contact the VACC OHSE Unit on 03 9829 1265.
